L. Alex Wilson Is Promoted To Editor Chicago Defender Daily

Lutrelle Palmer, Of Fisk University, Will Manage The Tri-State Defender

L. Alex Wilson, editor and general manager of the Tri-State Defender, has been named editor-in-chief of the Chicago Daily Defender, according to Publisher John H. Sengstacke.

Mr. Wilson's duties will also include editorial supervision of the Chicago Defender weekend and national editions.

Lutrelle Palmer, director of News Bureau, Fisk University, has been named to succeed Mr. Wilson in Memphis, said Mr. Sengstacke, publisher of the papers.

HERE SINCE 1950
Mr. Wilson has been in Memphis since 1950. He gained national and international attention during his coverage of the admission of Negro students to Central High school in Little Rock, 1957. He refused to run when attacked by a jeering, howling mob.

A native of Lake County, and a graduate of Florida A&M college (now university), he did further study in journalism at the University of Wisconsin and studied at Roosevelt college.

His newspaper experience includes work on the Norfolk Journal and Guide as assistant managing editor; the Ohio State News, as state editor; the Detroit Tribune as managing editor, and as staff writer on the weekend and national editions of the Chicago Defender.

WINS AWARDS

While with the Chicago Defender previously, Mr. Wilson won the Wendell Wilkie Award—1948-50, for best feature writing on "What Causes Crime" and "The Making of a Killer". He served as United Nations war correspondent for the Chicago Defender and papers of the National Newspaper Publishers association during the Korean war.

Mr. Wilson's awards include citations from the Department of Journalism, Lincoln University (Mo.); the Elks and the National Publishers association. The citations were for his outstanding skill and coverage of the Little Rock scene.

EXPRESSES THANKS

In commenting on his promotion, Mr. Wilson said: "I gave long and prayerful consideration before accepting the offer. The great challenge to a dedicated newspaperman in Memphis, the cooperation which the public has given the Tri-State Defender during my seven years of residence, the many friends I have won, and the fine family roots I have developed in this city, all have made it a distinct pleasure and privilege to serve this community. I am deeply grateful for this and shall ever feel that I am a part of this city. As for the Tri-State Defender, the staff is determined that it continue to render worthy service. In that determination the newspaper has the full support of the Defender family."

20 Here Asset To Race History

By NAT D. WILLIAMS

Last week's observance of Negro History Week made room for a lot of thinking.

On a public forum a group of articulate Negro Memphians agreed that emphasizing Negro history is not inconsistent with the general racial desire to be integrated into the full stream of American life.

There have been arguments, it may be recalled, against Negroes putting so much stress on being Negroes, while at the same time insisting on being regarded as something else — something without the label "Negro" being attached.

Some pretty strong words and ideas have been projected in support of the trend — the trend toward getting away from labels that tend to make conspicuous folk even more conspicuous, just at the time they are arguing loudest in favor of being lost in the crowd.

The forum participants took the position that the Negro has much in his past and present of which to be proud. And since the purpose of Negro History Week is to point out and point up what is best in the Negro's past, in the interest of self-respect, pride and inspiration, there is every reason why the observance should be continued and even expanded in scope.

School Board Adopts Two Resolutions

At its meeting last Friday afternoon, the members of the Memphis Board of Education unanimously approved an act giving permanence to the body.

An amendment to the charter of the Memphis City schools passed in 1939, it provides, that the Board of Education "shall have perpetual and permanent existence."

At the same meeting, a resolution was passed "so as to authorize and empower said Board of Education of the Memphis City Schools, which has charge of the public schools in the City of Memphis, to issue bonds for school purposes in addition to bonds which it has heretofore issued or has authority to issue."

The act also empowers the board to provide for the payment and interest on the bonds as they mature.

An original touch was given to Negro History Week observance over at Booker T. Washington High school this year. Prof. Blair T. Hunt, always at bat when it comes to original and way-out ideas, suggested that it might be well to take a look around right here in the local community and

Editor Hurt As Car Rammed By Liqueured Driver

L. Alex Wilson, editor and general manager of the Tri-State Defender, was slightly injured last Saturday night when a car driven by a man who was later charged with driving while intoxicated, struck the left rear side of his car as he was attempting to turn on to Walker while driving south on Bellevue.

The defendant in the case was Joe D. Hayes, of 398 LaCade ave., who appeared before Judge William D. Ingram in Traffic Court on Monday afternoon and was fined $35 for reckless driving, $25 for improper backing, and held to the state on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Mr. Wilson told the judge that he thought at first that he had not been injured during the collision, but that later he was bothered with pains in his left arm and in his neck.

After having struck the rear of Mr. Wilson's car and causing extensive damage, Mr. Hayes backed up for more than 90 feet and collided into the front of a police car in which were riding Police Lts. G. H. Parker and F. C. Watson.

All testified that the man had been drinking and was unsteady on his feet immediately after the collision. The police car was also damaged, the officers told Judge Ingram.

Claims He Tried To Molest Her

MRS. ELLAWEE HILL

"I am sorry I killed him, but I guess death was on him when he came into this house," Mrs. Ellawee Hill, of 1312 Adelaide st., calmly reflected last week following the death of a crippled hot tamale salesman, whom she stabbed in her home on Thursday afternoon, Feb. 5.

The victim was Clarence Clifton Stubblefield, 39, who died in John Gaston hospital on last Tuesday afternoon from a head wound made with a homemade paint scraper by Mrs. Hill, who told police that she was resisting the man's advances. He reportedly resided at 1318 Adelaide st.

Mrs. Hill was still free last week on $500 bond for assault on murder, although authorities said that she would be charged with murder.

"NO MURDERER"
"I am no murderer," Mrs. Hill said last week as she sat in her home listening to religious music on a kitchen radio. "You are a murderer when you go out looking for someone to kill them."

Mrs. Hill said that she had unfurnished the back door of her home so that the two girls that live with her and her husband, Henry Hill, a cement contractor, could enter it when they came home from school.

"I looked up and Clift was coming in the back way. He asked me to give him a cup of coffee, and when I started around the table to plug in the electric coffee pot, he grabbed me by the arm. HE GRABBED HER

"He grabbed my left arm that was once broken and twisted it behind my back and I started screaming for him to stop, but he kept twisting it," she said.

As they struggled through the bedroom, Mrs. Hill said that she picked up a paint scraper that was on a table, and as they got into the living room near the door the afflicted man tried to pull her to the floor as she neared the door screaming for help.

"My arm was hurting badly," she said, "so I hit over my shoulder with the scraper to make him turn me loose, and I struck him in the head. I was just trying to get relief for my arm, and I did not know that I was striking so hard."

Prof. Hunt Lauded As 'Creative Individual'

Prof. Blair T. Hunt, chairman emeritus of the Abe Scharff branch of the YMCA, was praised as a "creative individual who will live on" during a banquet given in his honor in the gymnasium of the branch on Monday evening, Feb. 9, which was attended by nearly 200 prominent citizens.

The guest speaker for the banquet honoring Prof. Hunt for his 20 years of service to the Y. M. C. A. was Dr. John B. Eubanks, head of the department of social science at Jackson college, Jackson, Miss., who spoke on the subject, "Challenge and Response in the Life of Man."

Dr. Eubanks said that Americans now face two real challenges — that of an atomic or nuclear war and the emerging peoples of Asia and Africa, and that he was "bothered" by the response which this country has shown at the realization that other countries are now catching up with us.

The speaker said that during his travels in Asia he learned that the people there considered Americans as people concerned only with the present life, but that in working for the YMCA and other projects, Prof. Hunt had insured for himself a place in the future.

Prof. Hunt told the assembly that the occasion was one which "shall ever hang in my memory," and said that as chairman emeritus he would continue to work for the YMCA, "and I challenge anyone to get ahead of me."

The evening was climaxed with the presentation of a lauding (See PROF. HUNT, Page 2)

14 Boys Go On Trial For Attacking Woman

Fourteen Negro boys, who should have been in high school classrooms, filed into Criminal Court, Division 2, last Monday morning to go on trial for a capital offense.

They are charged with having detained and criminally assaulted a 35-year-old mother of two small children on July 16, 1958 as she was walking along the street near Lauderdale st. and St. Paul ave.

The woman was criminally assaulted behind a church at that location and later carried to the rest room of the L. R. Brown park, where the young hoodlums continue the attack.

HELD LONG TIME
After having been continuously assaulted for more than two hours, the frail woman was rescued by two policemen who investigated the playground, and managed to catch two of them while the others scampered away in the darkness.

The victim told the police that she attempted to scream, but that on each try to summon help, the hoodlums either hit her in the mouth or choked her into silence.

Officers Ben Witney and Thomas Marshall rounded up the gang after receiving information from the two youths who were captured.

PROSECUTORS
Assistant District Attorneys Minor Tait and Lloyd Rhodes are serving as prosecutors in the case over which Judge Sam Campbell is presiding.

The 14 defendants are being represented by Attys. Will Gerber, Ulysses Smith, Ervin Weiss, and Public Defenders Robert Livingston, Robert Tillman and Hugh Stanton, Jr.

The defendants in the case are William J. Webb, 20, and his 16-year-old brother, Grover, of 615-B St. Paul ave.; Thomas Coleman, one had better call the police, but that she went to the phone and called them herself.

Mrs. Hill said that she had known the man for years, and that she used to give him newspapers in which to wrap his tamales, but that her husband had told the man to stop coming to the house.

Asked if the man had ever attempted to attack her before, Mrs. Hill replied, "I am not going to lie on him. He had never tried to bother me before, and had no reputation for molesting women."

"HIS TIME TO GO"

"Death must have been on him, but I am sorry it had to be me who killed him. I don't believe that you can go before your time comes, and if it had not been his time to go the good Lord would not have let him die."

A few of Mrs. Hill's neighbors were asked if they had heard her screaming on the day when the well-known tamale salesman was fatally stabbed, and none said that they heard her.

Mrs. Chaney Lee, a widow, with whom the dead man lived for three months prior to his death, but evicted him when he failed to pay his rent, said, "I am too old to lie, but everyone knows that Cliff has been going to that house during the day for the past two or three years."

"When Cliff was living here, he always brought home drinks, and Mrs. Hill would sneak up here to see him and drink with him. She would say, 'I came after a little nip,' and stay to help him drink up his wine and whiskey."

Mrs. Lee said that Mrs. Hill and the victim had on occasions gone into violent arguments in her home, and that during one incident she had to put the woman out of the house to prevent the pair from exchanging blows in her home.

Mrs. Lee said that she took the man into her home after he had been put out of the house where he formerly lived since she had known him most of his life, but had to evict him when he claimed he could not pay.

She said that she did not know where he was residing at the time that he was stabbed, but that some of his possessions were still at her home at 1318 Adelaide st., the address given for him after he was carried to the hospital.

Prince's Wedding Day Made Holiday

TOKYO — (UPI) — The cabinet Tuesday approved April 10, the day Crown Prince Akihito is to marry commoner Miss Michiko Shoda, as a national holiday.

The approval came after chief cabinet secretary Munenori Akagi urged that the "auspicious day" be declared a day of rest.

The ministers agreed to a revision of the national holiday's law for the occasion.

History

seek out Negro individuals whose lives and achievements might well be regarded as part of the warp and woof of the stuff that makes history.

He said that such people do not get their names in the papers too often; they don't make too much noise, and do not regard themselves as a "little piece of God broken off."

But in their own quiet ways, they are making history for the Negro by doing good work on so-called ordinary jobs, doing important things without a lot of publicity, by obtaining and holding positions not commonly held by Negroes, by being the "supply troops," the "working engineer battalions," and the "medics" so to speak, stretching from the front lines to the rear, making solid, needed, timely and important contributions to the overall program of Negro progress and racial history.

According to Prof. Hunt, it would be timely for the Negro to stop and contemplate for a moment the heroic proportions of these "gems of purest ray serene, that the unfathomed caves of ocean bear."

The Washington High school faculty and student body took well to the idea. And together they compiled a list of what they call a "Symbolic Twenty" Negroes in this city who may be regarded as important in the making of local racial history.

It was an interesting list, and in the foreword it was explained that the list in no way exhausts the number of local Negroes who are contributing to local racial progress. But as they labeled it, it is symbolic. The list of 20 names, along with brief statements setting forth the persons' claim to distinction, was given to all Washington students present at the school last Friday.

It was felt that the list would be a good thing for the youngsters to have around their homes. A gist of the list follows:

Noble Nubia, a long-time employee of Orgill Brothers and company, who has attained an important place with the firm as a shipping clerk.

Horace W. Wallace, Memphis branch manager of the multi-million dollar Fuller Products Manufacturing company.

Dr. Hollis F. Price, first Negro president of LeMoyné college.

J. A. Beauchamp, "father" of Boy Scouting among Negro boys in the Mid-South.

Mrs. Irene Shivers, supervisor in charge of some 125 cooks and waitresses in a local firm.

Andrew C. Williams, only Negro public relations consultant in the Mid-South for a major radio station.

Harold Jamison, local union president with both white and Negro members under his leadership.

Henry White, AFL-CIO union representative for States of Tennessee and Kentucky.

Robert Wright, first Negro ball bond agency owner in the area, and "father" of golfing among Memphis Negroes.

William Owen, only Negro in these parts serving as superintendent of a United States post office station.

Dr. Levi Watkins, first president of S. A. Owen college, rapidly gaining first rank as an all-Negro supported and directed institution of higher learning.

Mrs. Ethyl Venson, foremost Negro woman in the nation in the endeavor to gain an important foothold for Negroes in all branches of the cotton industry.

Mrs. Addie G. Owen, first local Negro woman to head the local YWCA branch for Negro women and making marked success.

Atty. A. A. Latting, "dean" of Memphis Negro lawyers and legal advisor to the top Negro business concerns in Memphis.

Bishop Charles H. Mason, founder of one of the nation's major Christian denominations.

Jeffrey Taylor, veteran civilian employee of the Memphis

These are intelligent questions. Of course being a good wife and mother is not the only requirement for a happy home, since unity and peace must come first. But the writer of this letter has nothing to fear.

She is exceedingly warmhearted, sympathetic and friendly. The young woman is no gossip, and has natural skill in the use of her hands, indicated by the flat top on the "n." They are not like an "n" but are well rounded so that they look like a stack of hay, and this rounded part shows the creative skill.

There is a little hook at the beginning of the "y" in "you," which shows acquiescence, but it is not exaggerated. She will want to own things, but will not make a habit of going in debt in order to get them.

She has a good sense of color that will help her create an attractive home. The down slant of the writing shows matter of factness rather than pessimism; this trait will help her hold a check on any rash moves.

Altogether she will make a good mother, a good neighbor, and a very affectionate and loyal wife.

In most cases, if you are having trouble with the in-laws, or even in your own home, there is nothing quite like a check-up on your personality that your handwriting will provide.

Of course where there are several involved, it is necessary to make a check on each one, for no one person was ever to blame for all of any family's troubles. Your grandmother and mine used to say, "It takes two to make a quarrel," and that is just as true today.

To get the truth your writing tells, merely write ten or twelve lines of writing, anything you desire to write. Enclose $1.00 and a stamped reply envelope, and your personal analysis will be mailed promptly.

If you desire to learn more rules, for analysing handwriting, enclose $1.50 for "SECRETS OF YOUR HANDWRITING REVEALS." Address to R. I. COLEMAN, Grapho Analyst, c/o Tri-State Defender, Memphis, Tenn.

General Depot, and prize winning interior and exterior decorator.

Mrs. Dorothy E. Greene, supervisor of the city school system's Negro school cafeterias.

Miss Lucie E. Campbell, internationally famous gospel song writer.

Dr. W. Herbert Brewster, the city's leading Negro poet and composer.

Jesse Turner, public accountant and vice president of the Tri-State Bank of Memphis.

And Mesdames Ida Jamison, Jimmie Anderson and Estelle Dumas — the first Negro Nursing Home house mothers for the Memphis hospital system. That's the list. Can you extend it? Pretty good, huh?

Ambitious Teenager To Pursue Nursing Career

"I love science, and I like to help people, so I decided while I was in the seventh grade that I would study to become a nurse," explained Miss Dorothy Bobo, a member of the senior class at Manassas High school.

For her nurse's training, Miss Bobo has narrowed the field down to two schools: the Hmger G. Phillips hospital school of nursing in St. Louis, Mo., and the Columbus Nursing school in Columbia, S. C.

An ambitious student, the young coed will be completing her high school work in three years. She missed one year in grade school and by going to summer school she has managed to catch up.

"When I was in the third grade living in the rural district around Tunica, Miss., I broke my leg and arm, and since we had to walk quite a distance to go to school, and I was unable to do so, I lost a year," she said.

Since last March, Miss Bobo has been working six evenings a week as a maid in the dietetics department of Baptist hospital, and has been saving her money for expenses in nursing school. At Manassas she is a member of the science and mathematics club, and has been on the honor roll ever since she entered there.

The 18-year-old coed is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Bobo, of 1228 Merchant st., and her father is an auto mechanic. Reading, she says, is her main hobby, but she likes to cook and sew.

Miss Bobo is a member of the St. Luke Baptist church, where she belongs to the choir and is a member of the Sunday school.

Will Extend Bus Service To Busy Area

At the request of the Hyde Park-Hollywood Civic club and the Bluff City Council of Civic clubs, bus service will be extended to the thickly populated area north of Chelsea and west of Bowwood up to the levee, beginning on March 1, members of the Transit Committee announced last week.

The No. 32 East Parkway line, which formerly went down Hollywood to Heard, turned around on Harrison and then came back up Sanders to Hollywood will go down Hollywood to Heard, proceed west to Trezevant, south to Redwood, north on Bowwood, west on Stival and do not Nedra to May, east on Amity, north on Davis and return on the same route.

It was on Jan. 8 at a public hearing before the Transit Committee that the members of the committee, led by Rev. M. Winfield, president of the Hyde Park-Hollywood Civic club asked for service in the area.

Rev. Alexander Gladney, president of the Bluff City Council of Civic clubs, was present to endorse the request of Rev. Winfield's group, and a large number of the members were present.

Youth Killed

Two boys, who were shoe shining buddies, ended a friendship on Feb. 15 in the most drastic of ways. One killed the other.

Olander Coburn, 18, former Manassas student of 2152 Clarkdale, was shot and killed instantly from a pistol that the two youths were playing with, which they apparently thought was unloaded.

James Tucker, 16, of 2254 Lyons, a Manassas junior, is being held in the juvenile court. No charge has been filed against the boy.

Capt. W. W. Wilkinson, chief of the homicide division, said investigation showed it was an accidental killing.

The accident reportedly happened when the boys removed the clip from the pistol and forgot about the shell in the chamber.

These Tips May Save You Grief

As Soon As Your Baby Stands It's Time To Make Home Safer Than Ever

As soon as baby stands, it's time for you to take strides to make your home safer than ever before. Just a little rearranging can make life easier for all concerned by preventing needless accidents, reducing worries over "what he might be doing now," and keeping "no don'ts" to a minimum.

So, here is what safety experts say should be done to protect the very young in the home:

1. Have locks placed on windows so they open only to a certain point that's not wide enough for child's body to squeeze through.
2. Put gates in front of all stairs.
3. Keep doors to closets tightly shut and close all doors to rooms not within parents' sight and easy reach.
4. Stock house with such first aid essentials as antiseptic for cuts and wounds, petroleum jelly for minor burns and bruises, s, gauze bandages, and adhesive tape, cotton and iodine.

5. Plug up any electrical outlet not in use to prevent the shocks youngster can get if he pokes objects into them.
6. Empty waste paper baskets and trash cans frequently so child won't be tempted to sample contents.
7. Wax floors lightly, or not at all, to prevent nasty spills.
8. Remove wiggly button eyes from toys. Child can chew them off and choke.
9. Take that lighted cigarette with you wherever you go.
10. Keep all matches in safe out-of-the-way places.

KITCHEN

1. Remove handles that turn stove off and on so child can't reach up and light the burner and oven.
2. Turn all pot handles away from the front of the stove so tots can't tip them over.
3. Keep electrical appliance cords up out of reach so appliance es can't be pulled over on top of child.

4. Clear lower kitchen cabinets of all poisonous household cleaners, paints and spot removers. From "hand to mouth" is baby's motto, regardless of what bottle labels indicate.
5. Keep sharp knives, tools and scissors in safe places not accessible to child.
6. Wipe up any spilled food immediately to prevent falls.

BATHROOM

1. Remove locks from bathroom door.
2. Place all medicines on a high shelf so child can't get at them.
3. Keep bathroom door closed whenever possible.

LIVING ROOM AND BEDROOM

1. Put away precious bric-a-brac — ashtrays, little statues, candy dishes. In the process of learning his way around, child might break them and cut himself.
2. Keep candy, popcorn and nuts in out-of-the-way places. Toddlers can easily choke on such foods.
3. Place floor lamp cords behind furniture and, whenever possible, tack them to the moldings, so child has little chance of pulling them over.
4. Keep dresser drawers closed. Child can trip on bottom ones and bump his head on those that are higher.

Adherence to these pointers should make a home safe for a youngster. However, parents should remember that many of these restrictions can be eased as child grows older and learns to cope with the things in his environment.

Find 3 Rare Hens Who Lay Colored Eggs

TYLER, Teas — (UPI) — W. R. Monroe expects to do a thriving Easter business with his three hens that lay colored eggs.

Monroe's sister, Mrs. JO. Bagwell, sent him three of the rare "Happiness" hens and a rooster from her home in Superior, Ariz. He says they lay blue eggs with an occasional pink one.

"They taste just like any other eggs, but they are a lot prettier," The "Happiness" strain started with a hen named "Bridgette" who began laying green eggs on the West Coast. The University of California extension service advanced the theory that a smog caused the reaction that changes the color of the egg shell.

Monroe, a maintenance foreman for the Texas Highway Department, says this theory is invalid. There is no smog in Tyler.

Barricade Rioting Fla. Prisoners In Center

RAIFORD, Fla. —(UPI)—Some 100 convicts were barricaded in the recreation center of the Florida penitentiary late Saturday, and state prisons system director R. O. Culver rushed to the scene to help handle what he called an "emergency situation."

The disturbance apparently was touched off by a "free for all" fight among convicts and guards in the prison's Negro dormitory earlier in the day, involving about 15 men. An assistant captain of the guards, L. W. Pace, about 55, was injured in the melee.

He was taken to the prison hospital where one official said he was suffering from a rupture.

Culver was at Avon Park, Fla., when the disturbance was reported. Before leaving for Raiford he said the recreation center had been locked up with 100 convicts inside and that another 300 prisoners were in a critical area near the barricaded building.

Due to the large number of prisoners involved the prison director said, the situation at Raiford was potentially dangerous.

Culver reported the disturbance to Gov. Leroy Collins at Fort Myers.

One of Culver's assistants at Tallahassee, Tauli Skelton said a fracas broke out in the recreation center of the Negro prisoners' dormitory about 10 a. m. Saturday when a guard caught a convict smoking in a bathroom against the prison rules.

"It wasn't really anything too bad," Skelton reported.

Admit Waiter Was Clued For TV Quiz Show

LONDON — (UPI) — A hotel waiter's claim that he was clued in on answers for a television quiz show is "true in substance," special investigation by a Queen's counsel has disclosed.

Waiter Stanley Armstrong, 42, charged last October that producer Robert Kesten of the TV quiz show "Twenty-One" twice briefed him before shows on questions he would be asked.

Armstrong's allegations were borne out in a report issued by former Atty. Gen. Sir Lionel Heald, who spent three months investigating the charge as a Queen's counsel.

The quiz show, patterned after its U. S. predecessor, ran for six months last year on Britain's commercial television network.

Kesten, a bearded, cigar-smoking 43-year-old Canadian, had denied Armstrong's charge. He admitted holding a briefing session with the contestant, but said Armstrong got a look at questions and answers while he was out of the room.

HONORED AT MELROSE — Miss Lucie E. Campbell, the world-famous hymn writer and retired school teacher, was honored during a program held in the gymnasium of Melrose High school last

Famed Hymn Composer Guest At HS Program

Students at Melrose High school last week received a real treat during the celebration of Negro History Week. There on Friday for the program given in the gymnasium was Miss Lucie Campbell, retired school teacher and a world-famous as a composer of hymns.

The speaker for the occasion was H. A. Gilliam, vice-president and director of agencies for Universal Life Insurance company, who told the students that if Negroes are to compete with others in a capitalistic society they will have to develop in business.

Mr. Gilliam discussed the contribution of such Negroes as the late W. C. Handy and the late Dr. J. E. Walker, Miss Lucy Campbell and Madame Florence, whom he said "proved that ability can rise above the color line."

Miss Campbell's accomplishments were told by Miss Erma L. Clanton, as the glee club, under the direction of Miss Viola Flowers, sang softly one of her most famous compositions, "Something Within Me."

"When we realized that another year for the observance of National Negro History week had rolled around, immediately we began to wonder what outstanding personality could we invite . . . who had won world acclaim in some outstanding field, someone who had walked with kings, yet not lost the common touch, someone who was an educator, a Christian, a leader, a teacher and lover of mankind," Miss Clanton stated.

They finally decided upon Miss Campbell, she said, who also composed "Just to Behold His Face," "He'll Understand and Say 'Well Done,'" "Heavenly Sunshine," and other popular religious hymns and anthems.

Program advisors were Mrs. L. M. McKinney and Miss Clanton; Miss Flowers, Mr. Green and Mrs. L. W. Jones in charge of music; H. Winfrey and Mrs. F. Bolden in charge of scenery.

Mrs. Ruthie Strong directed the pantomime, Mrs. Dorris Bodden arranged for refreshments and Mrs. C. T. Suggs designed the program sheets.

THE Pulpit SPEAKS

REV. C. THOMAS PAIGE

The latter section of the first verse of Luke in the eleventh chapter reads: "Lord, teach us to pray!" As one reads this challenging verse many times the question "Why?" pops up in our minds. Why all of this concern about prayer?

A minister went to the hospital to visit one of his members who happened to have been a soldier wounded in battle. As he looked at this young man writhing in pain, the minister turned to him and asked, "Son, do you pray?" The young man looked up and said, "Yes, I pray sometimes!" That is the tragic thing about the whole matter — far too many of us pray sometimes. In many instances the times are too far apart.

The question now arises, "Why pray at all?" I know that this is the question in many of our minds today. We look about us and see that in all things we are most secure and this security has lulled us into a state of complacency. We can paddle our own canoe. Religion in itself is built upon the fact that we believe in a force far superior to ours that is capable of supplying all of our needs. To the person who feels that he is self-sustaining there is no need for religion.

Daily I come in contact with people who feel that they have moved themselves into a position where religion is no longer necessary. How tragic it is that there are those of us who feel that with the acquisition of a few earthly goods we no longer need God! A few degrees, a few dollars, a nice home, a little social fame and a few other non-essentials in this world have done much to warp the thinking of many people. Yet as I move about from place to place I observe that time has a peculiar way of devaluing many of the things many of us have adopted as our salvation.

I know people who never think in terms of God as long as everything is going along as they would expect it. But the moment things start to running contrary to the way that they think things should be going, it is at this point that prayer and religion become meaningful. PRAYER IS JUST AS IMPORTANT IN DAYS OF PROSPERITY AS IT IS IN DAYS OF ADVERSITY. This is a hard lesson for many of us to learn but it is a valuable lesson nevertheless. It is a lesson that all of us must learn sooner or later.

Every now and then we set aside a certain day as "World Day of Prayer" but why? We live in the richest nation of the world. Many of the people, in fact, most of the people of the United States never know the hardships of other nations. So why set up a special "World Day of Prayer?" Are not our degrees, bank account, social fame and the like sufficient for all of our needs? Oh no, there are people of high intelligence, much money, and the like who already know that in spite of all of these there is an unrest that cannot be satisfied by these. In spite of all of these there is a longing that needs to be satisfied. To these things only prayer can bring an answer.

These apostles who came to Jesus had the joy of daily walking with Jesus but like many of us they walked with Him but did not communicate with Him. The greatest need of our world today is a nation that is in constant communication with God. When we are in constant communication with Him our whole outlook in life is changed. When these apostles asked Jesus to teach them to pray they were only asking for an opportunity to learn how to communicate with Him.

Prayer — as simple as it is and as insignificant as it is has a peculiar way of getting the job done that nothing else can do. There are thousands of people now living who can testify to the full value of prayer but these thousands are far too few. We need a whole nation this morning that is fully aware of the real value and power of prayer.

The answer of this young man, "Yes, I pray sometimes," is true in far too many cases today. We — each of us — should and must pray and pray unceasingly if the Kingdom is ever coming on earth as it is in heaven. Then and only then will the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of man be realized and men will walk in fellowship with each other. If you don't believe it try it for a while and see if things don't change.

Mrs. Roosevelt Hits Dulles View

MADISON, WIS. — (UPI) — Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said that Secretary of State Dulles should not talk about risking war if the Russians resume their blockade of Berlin.

"It gives the Russians a chance to point to us and say we want war," she said.

"If the Russian blockade the city, we should do as we did before."

During the 1949 blockade the United States organized the "Berlin Airlift" and kept the city supplied entirely by air.

Fleming Hits Apathy On Flourides

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Health Secretary Arthur S. Flemming said it was "nothing short of tragic" that millions of children were being denied tooth decay protection because a "militant minority" thwarted water fluoridation programs.

Flemming told a news conference that "controlled fluoridation has been proved over and over again to be an inexpensive and completely safe means of preventing 65 per cent of dental decay."

Yet, he said, only one in every four Americans had such protection.

Castro Eligible To Become President

HAVANA — (UPI) — Publication of Cuba's interim constitution revealed that both Fidel Castro and Dr. Ernesto ("Che") Guevara, his lieutenant, are eligible for the presidency.

The constitution, which is to remain in force until elections are held sometime in 1960, sets the minimum age for a Cuban president at 30 instead of the 35 required by the previous charter. Castro will be 33 this year.

Guevara was made eligible for the presidency by a special provision declaring that he is "Cuban by birth." He actually was born in Argentina.

The last person to be designated an honorary native of Cuba was Maximo Gomez, a Dominican who was honored in 1903 for his aid to Cuba in its war against Spain.

Queen Tells All In New Biography

AMSTERDAM — (UPI) — Former Queen Wilhelmina, in a book of memoirs published, charged that palace advisers kept her and her husband, Prince Hendrik, in a "cage of ignorance" through most of her 50-year reign.

"Those who wanted to preserve the cage atmosphere gave us only that information which they thought we must know," she said. "Other reports, no matter how important, were withheld. Behind those actions was the desire to isolate us . . . from the people. This was for me unacceptable."

The 78-year-old former Queen, who yielded the throne to her daughter Juliana in 1948, said she felt "a hankering after people to meet them as they really were, and not in the artificial atmosphere of the royal palace. The solitude became oppressive."

Plan To Use Old Gauges On Planes

NEW YORK — (UPI) — American and Eastern airlines planned to resume normal turbo-prop airliner operations by resuming use of old-style altitude gauges with the permission of the Federal Aviation Agency.

The FAA had imposed strict bad-weather landing restrictions on the two airlines' Lockheed Electra planes with new altimeters after the crash of an American Airlines Electra in the East River near LaGuardia Airport Feb. 3. The tragedy took 65 lives.

The agency said the restrictions would be lifted if the airlines reverted to the use of altimeters that were familiar to their pilots, and American and Eastern agreed to do this Tuesday.

Pope Gets Wind Of Big Helicopter

VATICAN CITY — (UPI) — A big "helicopter" blew sand in Pope XXIII's eyes Saturday, but he still said he might fly in it some day.

A two-motored, 93-foot Vertol helicopter, an American type used for short passenger hops, lowered gently down into the Pontiff's own courtyard inside the Vatican.

A characteristically strong gust of wind swept the portico where Pope John was seated.

An attendant leaped in front of him and held his own black cape between the Pontiff and the helicopter.

"I saw the wind hit the Pope and I was glad someone shielded him," Pilot William Coffee, 39, of Cleveland, Tenn., said. "But I knew there was no danger."

Pope John himself referred to the big whirlybird in the Latin as a "helicopter" in a special prayer written for the helicopter, which he blessed during the demonstration.

Says Budget Not Inflation Key

South Seeks New Ways To Stymie Mixing

Acts In Wake Of Va. Collapse

NASHVILLE, Tenn., — The court-decreed death of Virginia's massive resistance to public school integration has spurred their southern states into a hurried reappraisal of their pro-segregation positions, Southern school news reported.

Departure of Virginia from the list of segregated states left six still maintaining separate schools for whites and Negroes at elementary and secondary levels. These are Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina.

Some, determined to maintain segregation, buttressed their anti-integration laws against the time their turn might come.

Others had under consideration programs aimed to soften the impact of integration. One feature most generally discussed provides for tuition grants for children to attend private schools if their parents object to integrated public schools.

The Virginia legislature adopted such a plan. It acted after both federal and state courts voided statutes which had kept schools closed in some cities until last Monday.

Gov. John Patterson, newly inaugurated in Alabama on a no-integration platform, conceded the situation was altered and that "it is going to be tough to maintain segregation." He told the state legislature it must be ready to act promptly and decisively on short notice.

Sen. Herman Talmadge introduced in the U. S. Senate a proposal to amend the Constitution to place operation of schools in local hands.

At the same time the Georgia General Assembly quickly approved six segregation - strengthening laws sponsored by the new administration of Gov. Ernest Vandiver. This flurry of activity followed a federal court decision against maintenance of segregation by Georgia State college.

A group of Florida legislators announced measures would be introduced at the forthcoming state assembly in April providing for a dual, optional system of integrated and segregated schools.

where some public schools integrated but where Little Rock high schools still are closed, worked on new segregation legislation. Aides of Gov. Orval E. Faubus with desegregation to be complete said it was beyond reach of federal courts.

Desegregation of schools in Norfolk and Arlington County, Va., shared the spotlight at the opening of the 86th session of Congress. Sen. Herman Talmadge of Georgia introduced a proposal to amend the Constitution to place control of schools in local hands. Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson won approval of his compromise filibuster measure.

Other developments, by states: ALABAMA — U. S. District Judge Frank M. Johnson, Jr., cleared former Circuit Judge George C. Wallace of Clayton on charges of contempt arising from Wallace's refusal to hand over voting records to the U. S. Civil Rights Commission.

ARKANSAS — Gov. Orval Faubus presented the Arkansas Legislature a new plan aimed at avoiding school desegregation. His advisers said it was beyond reach of federal courts.

DELAWARE — The state Board of Education will present federal bills sent up by newly-inaugurated Gov. Ernest Vandiver.

KENTUCKY — The 1959 gubernatorial campaign began to warm up with Gov. A. B. Chandler's presidential ambitions an interesting issue but with school segregation not an issue. Better than 80 percent of the state's Negro school-age population now is in desegregated districts.

LOUISIANA — The U. S. Civil Rights Commission announced it would look into charges of Negroes being denied voting rights; Democratic leaders predicted a possible bolt from the national party over the civil rights issue.

MARYLAND — Montgomery County's school system became the first in the state to set a definite date for termination of segregation at all grade levels.

MISSISSIPPI — The head of state Democratic Executive Committee Invited National Democratic Chairman Paul Butler to come to Mississippi and apologize for to qualified Negroes. The new allegedly telling the South to accept integration or get out of the major segregation - tightening party. Butler declined, saying he hadn't been that blunt. MISSOURI — Kansas City, with a start on desegregation in 1955, reported integration of both pupils and faculties had progressed year by year.

Says Reds Will Lose In Battle For Africa

A 45-year-old Bantu minister from the Union of South Africa, now studying journalism at Boston university's School of Public Relations and Communications, firmly believes the African people will not yield to the "glitter of Communism" because of their strong religious heritage.

He is the Rev. Arthur S. Grootboom — a minister of the Pentecostal Holiness church, member of the Bafokeng tribe, and one of the founders of its high school. The Rev. Mr. Grootboom explained that what "glitters" about Communism is "ownership of the means of production by the people." He added that Russia does not seem to exemplify this.

The well-spoken minister who taught for 20 years in the elementary schools of his country, feels his people will never accept "any doctrine that embodies as one of its principles, the denial of God."

However, he said that the United States could do much to save the African people from being wooed and won by Russia "by helping to train African technologists and by giving aid to the independent states in Africa." He also added that "through the missionary program in Africa the life of the African has been transformed from that of a savage tied down by superstition, cruel initiation ceremonies, and a blood-thirsty nature to a Christian who is comparable to any other Christian in the world."

He believes quite firmly that Christianity is the answer to his people's problems — national and international — and that without it the world is doomed to an inevitable catastrophic end.

The Rev. Mr. Grootboom eventually hopes to return to his home in Rhodesia, where he completed a three-year course in two years at the Institute he met two graduates of Boston university who encouraged him to come to Boston to continue his education here. "One of the most pleasing aspects of the American educational system is the fact that you can work your way through school," he said. "A financial burden such as mine would make an education impossible in any other country in the world," exclaimed Mr. Grootboom.

As District Secretary of the Official Board of his church, this gentle yet forceful man is undeniably devoted to his people, his faith and the preservation of the African culture and tradition. Born in Healdtown, Cape Province, he was ordained an evangelist in 1953 at Krugersdorp. He also attended the University of South Africa, where he studied two years toward his bachelor of arts degree.

One unique aspect of the African culture is that no orphanages exist because of a tradition that children who are left without parents automatically return to their father's relatives. If the father dies leaving his wife and children —his issue must return to his family although his wife is free to marry again. Parents consider "adopted" children their own.

The African minister, who grew up as a Methodist and received his training in a Methodist institution, hopes that this and many other aspects of the African culture will be preserved. Perhaps he will aid in their preservation with the small printing press he eventually hopes to find and take home with him.

SERVING 1,000,000 NEGROES IN THE TRI-STATE AREA

Our Opinion

Inquiry Into Housing Discrimination

The recent New York hearings into housing discrimination did much to awaken public conscience to the large scale indulgence of this evil in a great metropolis. Although the hearings were held under the auspices of the Federal Civil Rights Commission which is bereft of any statutory power, the testimony of witnesses revealed a wide range of residential bias hitherto unpunished.

Many New Yorkers were dismayed by the revelation of how wide spread housing discrimination was. They could not see how such a practice could flourish in the face of local and state laws prohibiting it. The fact the matter has been brought so sharply to public attention may help to dissipate the complacency which either ignorance or indifference had induced.

A succession of witnesses spelled out the damage done by discrimination to the moral, economic and social fibers of the community. The pattern is national in character and tradition as the findings read into the record by various organizations and research groups made clear.

Chicago, Detroit and New Orleans have Negro ghettos covering greater areas than Harlem. But Jews also come under this racial exclusion. One witness mentioned by name fifteen residential districts in Washington D. C., from which Jews are prohibited either openly or by gimmicks.

One of the major points that emerged in the testimony before the Commission, was that Federal Housing agencies have adopted a policy of neutrality or non-responsibility toward the question of discrimination; that "if the Government, expressing public policy, sees nothing wrong in racial discrimination, private persons cannot be censured for practicing it"; that more than one-third of Manhattan's fashionable housing cooperatives and many luxury rental apartments exclude Jews; that restrictions against Negroes and Puerto Ricans are so tight as to force them to live in slum or near-slum areas.

Across most of the rest of the country the various Federal agencies do nothing to halt outright discrimination in housing built with public help. It is only in the few states having anti-bias laws that they withhold mortgage insurance or other aid to proven violators of the local laws.

Dr. Frank Horne, the fearless and able director of the New York commission on intergroup relations told the Federal investigative group, "The great weight and power of the Federal Government has been thrown on the side of the segregated market and the restricted market."

He said that public housing program also has probably done more to increase than to diminish segregation, notwithstanding the "open occupancy policy of many local authorities."

The picture is not all black in New York. Efforts to check discrimination are being made by both legal means and by actions of many voluntary groups. Many property owners who went along with discriminatory practices merely because they feared open occupancy would put them at a competitive disadvantage are said to be letting down the bars in the knowledge that discrimination is now illegal. Others are finding that it is not true that a neighborhood goes to ruin if a few Negro or Puerto Rican families move in.

Sen. Javits told the Commission that Congress shared equal responsibility with the Executive branch in eliminating bias in housing. Taking issue with Charles Abrams, retiring chairman of the New York State Commission Against Discrimination, Javits said further legislation was needed. Abrams contended that wise Administration policy would eliminate discrimination without new laws. Javits argued that "legislation does help. Legislation does push the thing in the right direction."

In Chicago, the picture is still black, very black. Nothing whatever is being done to promote the concept of "open occupancy." Instead the city has allied itself with the Hyde Park-Kenwood Redevelopment scheme to clear Negro families from the area to make room for a virtually lily white residency. This plan, one of the boldest, brazen land grabs since the expansion of the railroads into the West, has the blessings of the great University of Chicago. And our Negro aldermen did not even attempt to introduce an amendment safeguarding the vested interest of Negro families in Hyde Park and Kenwood when the Redevelopment plan was approved by the city council.

We hope the Civil Rights Commission will make Chicago its next target of inquiry, so that the conniving politicians and scheming realtors might be exposed to the full glare of public criticism.

French African Leaders In Paris

The first session of the Executive Council of the new French Overseas Community opened with split in the ranks of the twelve Premiers of the African republics. One camp favored the establishment of African federations within the Overseas Community. The other was opposed to this as contrary to the spirit of the Constitution of the Fifth Republic, which established the Community.

The Executive Council, whose meeting was formally called to order by President Charles de Gaulle, is composed of France's present and former overseas territories which have decided to remain, under one status or another, members of the French Community.

The status or republic was chosen by twelve of the former overseas territories in western and central Africa. They are:

Mauritania, French Sudan, Ivory Coast, Senegal, Upper Volta, Niger, Dahomey, Middle Congo, Chad, the Central African Republic and Madagascar.

They are independent states, however matters of finance, defense and foreign affairs are within the competence of the Community as a whole. By holding the meeting at the Elysee Palace in Paris, the official residence of President de Gaulle, the French Government showed the high regard in which the new body is held. The African leaders were given full military honors by troops in brilliant dress uniform massed in the palace courtyard.

The old French Union under the 1946 Constitution was centralized in Paris. Its Assembly was merely a consultative body. The whole concept was too inadequate and impractical to cope with the rising wave of African nationalism which is sweeping all Africa.

The French Community may nurse the hope of keeping the African states within its orbit of power, but these states sooner or later will strike out for complete and unconditional autonomy and sovereignty. Such is the inexorable course of events in resurgent Africa.

Dear Editor: The members of the Chicago Fisk Club wish to express our deep appreciation for the fine coverage that appeared in Thursday's paper announcing the presentation of the Fisk Jubilee Singers in a benefit concert at the Dunbar Auditorium. Those who attended this affair (there was a full house) proclaimed it one of the finest musicals ever given in Chicago. The proceeds from this concert will partially help some students to obtain a college education.

The citizens along with myself, in the East End of the Ward, of the 78th and 30th precincts have requested that a polling place be established in one of the buildings on 5000 S. Adventures In Race Relations

One thing you can count upon as surely as grits in Dixie is a southerner's fierce pride in the South and an idolatrous loyalty to the memory of the heroes of the decadent Confederacy.

Attachment to the faded past is so great that one traveling through the South wonders if he is still in the United States. The confederate flag flies atop almost every building except the post office where Uncle Sam is still able to exert some influence.

A patriotic American in Dixie begins to wonder after a while who won the Civil War. Almost without exception, radio and TV stations sign on or off with a spirited rendition of "Dixie."

At sports events and other public gatherings where one would expect to hear the National Anthem, the strains of "Dixie" assail the ears. And though they lost and are long dead, Southern heroes of the war, immortalized in bronze or stone, still stand at attention in almost every public square. Other southern towns which either couldn't afford the expense or couldn't agree on a personality, have set up a more gruesome reminder of their secession — an old-fashioned cannon mounted on two wheels and a pyramid of rusty cannon balls.

While some have cast a humorous eye at the South's adoration of its past while allowing itself to be overtaken by the present, others have turned it to their own advantage.

Most of the confederate flags and bunting that wave in the lazy southern breeze on confederate day are manufactured in Brooklyn by, of all people, damn Yankees being paid union wages in plants flying the Stars and Stripes.

But the most clever exploitation of southern pride came during a campaign to prevent the demolition of the commandant's home at the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

Proud graduates of the school bursting with nostalgia and reverence for the great military leaders who once occupied the dwelling wrote indignant letters to the Defense department which had made the harsh decision. But the cold efficiency of the department had decreed that the old building which even architects declared was a masterpiece of the building art, was in the way of expansion of the academy.

It's all right to be sentimental, they allowed, but we can't allow our hearts to prevent us from doing what the logic of our minds knows has to be done. But one very earnest graduate of the academy was not to be put aside so easily. His training at the military school had taught him that once repulsed, you don't give up, you just adopt new strategy.

He contacted Virginia's proud Sen. Harry Byrd. "Senator," he asked, "did you know the Republicans in Washington are planning to destroy the former home of Gen. Robert E. Lee?"

The Senator bristled with indignation. He wanted to know who, why, when and where. He promptly went into action—and today the old mansion still stands on the campus of the nation's oldest military academy which in its long history has been commanded by such immortals as Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Gen. Robert E. Lee.

Being Frank...

About People, Places And Problems
By FRANK L. STANLEY

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — The 34th annual observance of Negro History Week is an occasion for glancing backwards sufficiently to gain insight for future action. Three quick quotes come to mind: "Until Negroes enjoy the opportunity to give their talents in planning and building for the total advancement of their communities, the south will hardly be able to move out of position of economic disadvantage, cultural limitation and institutional distress."

Tuskegee Institute Race Relations Report, 1959.

"The Negro must first of all have a conscientious pride, absolute faith and believe in himself. No race that despises itself, that laughs at itself, that wishes to God it was anything else but itself, can ever be a great people."

Robert Russa Moton—

"Every civilization comes to the point when it is challenged and the response of that civilization at that moment determines its survival. Out of 21 civilizations of the earth, 19 of them have ended in the junk heap of human destruction. They perished from within, not conquest without, because they did not meet their challenge properly."

"It may be that the Negro will give the spiritual dynamic to our civilization which will make for its survival in this dark hour." — Arnold J. Toynbee—

The challenge, therefore, is real and personal. Although freedom is many things to many people, in the final analysis, it is a matter of personal choice. It is that choice between right and wrong, good and evil, doing or not doing, and in going forward or backward; shirking or facing up to responsibility.

"The becoming thing," as James Gould Cozzens says, "is for man to try what he can do; not just sprawl there whining. He should get up and talk."

The great danger to meeting responsibility lies in our tendency to flee from its burden. Therefore, when we are tempted to free ourselves, we must be peculiarly on guard that we do not allow ourselves to become ensnared in the toils of artificial distinctions and plausible explanations which when stripped of their verbal dress appear in their nakedness as contemptible subterfuges.

"Responsibility is much like pleasure which when shared is not lessened, but rather increased" as Bacon long ago observed. Thus our share of responsibility is not a part but the whole, undiminished and untransferable. One may have others associated with him in an endeavor, but his individual responsibility cannot be shifted. Likewise, we are individually responsible for our inertia when we should be aggressive. For unquestionably the true meaning of responsibility is a fight to the finish!

This week, we recall the history of a great people. But the greatest chapters of our history are yet to be written. They can only be written by those who believe like Dr. Will Durant when he says in his STORY OF CIVILIZATION "The present is the past rolled up for our action."

So What?

"If my boss paced the floor while dictating... I'd fall off his lap."

Simple On Negro History Week

"Did you hear what that street speaking said last night on the Northwest corner of Lenox Avenue?" asked Simple.

"No," I said. "What did he say?"

"He said we colored folks should be ever grateful to the Mau Maus for starting with their own. In Africa and elsewhere, said, there are some handkerchiefs back in slavery days. Douglass struck his master down when old Negroes who deserve nothing better than a killing. He said a Negro conditioned by the white man will betray even his mama, not to speak of his brother. He said the Mau Maus did right when they started to clean up the black nest along with the white. Further more, he said, Uncle Toms in America must go."

"I hope he was not advocating mass assassinations in the United States," I said. "The vote, not violence, should be our program here."

"When they snatch the vote from your black hand in Georgia, and dare you to write on a ballot, and when white folks shoot down colored folks in Mississippi for even trying to register, who is being violent to who? I ask you."

"The Bible says turn the other cheek," I quoted.

"You cannot turn neither one cheek nor the other with a bullet hole through your head," said Simple. "In the Mau Mau country, there must have been too many black cheek-turners, because the white man has ruled men together trying to start a big uprising that we all might be free. "And that speaker come right on up to now in his speaking, and said remember men and women like Gus Courts, and Martin Luther King, and Rev. Shuttlesworth, and Daisy Bates who braves bullets and bombs and jails that we all might be free, and vote, and send our children to decent schools. He said all the brave men and women is not dead. Some are living today."

"Oh, that man on the ladder made a wonderful speech last night out there on the corner of Lenox Avenue in the chilly cold, and lots of people stopped to listen to him, including me. And I were so moved that I wrote a poem which I am going to send to him as a motto for Negro History Week. I want you to type my poem down for me on a piece of paper when you go home, because my handwriting is not so good to read."

"How does it go?" I asked.

"It is deep," said Simple. "This poem, composed by me, Jesse B., better known as Simple. So listen attentively!"

Ralph Bunche in introducing protest over remarks made by Roy Wilkins at a banquet in New York a few years ago called the NAACP chieftain "Mr. Rebuttal." Wilkins was referring to Bunche's great ability to pull the rug out from under an opponent in a debate.

Wilkins demonstrated his superb skill in the debating art last Sunday on the NBC television program of Chet Huntley. Editor Waring of the Charleston News and Courier spoke first and presented the point of view of southern segregationists. He aimed several sharp blows at the NAACP and came up with the old allegation that there were subversive elements in the liberal organization.

Wilkins followed Waring and quickly disposed of the subversive crack by inviting his opponent to read FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's new book which gives the NAACP a clean bill of health on the Communist charge.

More than this, however, Wilkins made a calm, dispassionate presentation of the NAACP case which, in my view, completely routed the contention of Chet Huntley that the NAACP ought to bow out of the school integration fight. It is crystal clear that if the NAACP should bow out the whole school integration struggle would crumble and eventually collapse.

As you know, the Wilkins-Waring debate on Huntley's program was scheduled after a storm of which white Virginians in the communities where integration took place accepted their fate. There was no violence nor hardly any threat of violence. The behavior of the adults was mature and the conduct of the children were are, after all, most directly involved seemed as fine as one could wish.

The Virginia story must cast a pall of heavy gloom over the die-hard segregationists throughout the South. They must know that like their forefathers who fought against the Union that history has once more caught them giving their love and loyalty to a cause that is irrevocably lost. This does not mean that last ditch fighting will not continue and that resistance to integration will still be strong in many sections of the deep South.

I think it does mean, however, that the more thoughtful Southerners who are in positions of leadership in Georgia, Alabama and even Mississippi, now must realize that they are literally painting themselves into a corner. Sooner or later they are going to be so completely isolated and cut off from the mainstream of American life, they will collapse under their own weight.

This will happen, however, only if the NAACP and the supporters of true democracy continue their great constitutional struggle that has brought us thus far. It would be fatal to relax our vigilance to

Dominican Republic Fetes Americans

Group Tours Island Sites

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic — Generalissimo Rafael Leonidas Trujillo Molina and his brother, President Hector B. Trujillo Molina received at the Palace a group of American newspaper people during their visit to Ciudad Trujillo.

The reporters, politicians and professionals were in the Dominican Republic to attend the famous cocktail show as guests of William Alexander of the By-Line Newsreel company. This show, which exhibited hundreds of fine cattle raised on the island, thoroughbred race horses and other livestock, was attended by some 15,000 spectators including the heads of state.

The week-long fair was filmed by the By-Line Co., and will soon open in Washington.

During their visit, the Americans got a representative picture of what life is like on this island. They visited not only the fine hotels of the wealthy but the most humble huts of the very poor. They were given a thorough tour of the capital city viewing the government buildings and the factories, the home of the rich and the slums of the lowly. They visited the small villages and rural areas from the seashore to the mountains.

While there is still some poverty in this country as in every country of the world, the visitors were greatly impressed with the progress which is being made to better living conditions for all in this country in spite of the so-called dictatorial form of government.

They were amazed at the many hospitals located in all sections of the country, even in the poor, rural areas. They noted with a great deal of interest the many schools scattered throughout the country and the compulsory educational system which exists in the island.

They were impressed with the small food stores located along the highways in the rural areas providing meat and vegetable at a nominal cost to the very poor. They admired the housing program and slum clearance project under way in the Dominican.

They were amazed at the many churches now under construction in the area. They were surprised at the refugee program which has been initiated by the government of this country.

In one area alone, on the mountainside at Constanza, five refugee colonies have been established for those escaping from other countries. Tiny, bright-colored houses of pink, purple, green, red and yellow, make up the little villages for the refugees. Each family is provided with a small plot of ground and sufficient seed to begin their own crops and start a new life.

Discrimination because of race, color, religion or sex is completely nil in this country. This applies to education, employment, housing or social activities. As Governor Josefin Pimental Boves of San Cristobal, a beautiful brown woman put it, "In this country anybody can arise to the height of his ability." She pointed out that her position indicates that color or sex are no barriers.

'Fashion Plate' Revue For St. Stephens What Name Implies

● STATUESQUE CLEO JOHNSON, charm and modeling school director and much-in-demand guest model showing an exquisite lace over satin lounging ensemble for the forenoon, contributed her talents and those of six of her charm school models to "Fashionplate." Proceeds were used to rehabilitate St. Stephens.

● SETTING A DAZZLING pace for parades of fashions to come, "Fashionplate" benefit revue and luncheon recently in the Terrace Casino of the Morrison hotel in downtown Chicago treated an equally fashionable and enthusiastic throng of friends of St. Stephens AME church to a resplendent showing of morning attire, fashions for daytime, business and travel. The brilliant climax presented creations for afternoon, evening and formal wear.

● COMPLEMENTING the showing, which was preceded by luncheon, were fetching and fascinating hats and lush and luxurious furs. The revue, produced by Jeri Jensen McKnight of Prairie Farmer-WLS radio fame, was enhanced by the clever via telephone commentary of Desoree Pyburn and Bud Stewart. Photo right: Mrs. McKnight dictates descriptions of Hats by Evelyn (Evelyn Tatum) to her co-worker, "Evie" Narkus.

Jugs' Fifth Annual Pre-Lenten Charity Ball Termed Big Success

"The Jugs have done it again!" was the approving expression on the lips of hundreds of guests attending the J-U-G's, Inc. fifth annual Pre-Lenten Charity ball at which they presented $1400.00 to Les Passes Treatment center and other charities. Miss Velma Lois Jones, president of the J-U-G's, made the presentation to Dr. Robert Woodbury, of Les Passes.

The formal event, unquestionably one of the top drawer social affairs, was the occasion of the glittering midnight show of "Living Ads" gorgeously dressed subjects representing 24 sponsoring firms and organizations.

Johnson's Hippodrome, where the ball was held on the night of Feb. 6, has never been more beautifully decorated. It was truly transformed into Mardi Gras Madness, the theme of the ball. There were many "ohs" and "ahs" of admiration from the fashionably dressed guests as they viewed the fabulous decorations. Huge clowns bearing the names of famous old New Orleans streets, Canal, Desire, Basin, Rampart, Bourbon, Hastings and many others, circled the ball room and green and silver leaves roped off the floor, making the room appear as streets roped off of Mardi Gras fun.

ARTFULLY DECORATED

The Royal Barge that brought the "Living Ads" to the Mardi Gras anchored on the West side of the room and the entire East side was a mural of people joyfully enjoying the spectacle. The North end of the hall was covered with beautifully colored and decorated burlap. Serpents and balloons hung from the entire ceiling. Glittering hats, noise makers, blowouts, masks, matches and cigarettes were provided at each table by the J-U-G's for their guests. Clubs, firms and individuals, and their tables further decorated with beautiful flowers.

The Living Ads entered the ballroom through the huge mouth of a clown. They promenade down the long lighted ramp, decorated with masks before the bandstand, which had a backdrop with King Rex sitting on his throne. Music was superbly furnished by the Douglass Swingsters under the direction of Nelson Jackson. A. C. Williams was the master of ceremonies. Members of the J-U-G's were luxuriously gowned in various colored ballroom dresses. The president, Miss Velma Lois Jones, wore white peau de soie with a back interest. Miss Marie Bradford in orange and silver peau de soie with orange satin overlapping bodice; Mrs. Gloria Weaver in silver lame sheath; Mrs. Josephine Bridges, in red silk peau de soie with panel in back; Mrs. Modane Thompson in blue green sheath with panel in back; Mrs. Sarah Chandler in lilac and purple sheath featuring empire waist and a sülle stole; Miss Erma Laws, in Paris pink sheath with panel in back; Mrs. Delores Lewis in black embroidered sheath; Mrs. Helen Cooke in sky blue tulle bouffant and Miss Gerri Anderson in green floral sheath with puffed back. Each member complimented her dress color with the same color hair spray.

PROF. HUNT HONORED

Senior citizen, Prof. Blair T. Hunt, was brilliantly feted at a testimonial banquet given by the

by MARJORIE I. ULEN

Though the outside world continued with the incessant rain, nothing but cheer, warmth and conviviality abounded the Memphis club when they honored new officers at a swank Sunday night cocktail party, with installation ceremonies, and introduced new members of the club and their wives.

The bar was the scene of much of the gay repartee that filled the affair... with the sumptuous hors d'oeuvre laden table in the dining room running a close second. In the comfortable confines of the main clubroom, many "tres gay" groupings added to the intimacy of the lovely party.

Genial John R. Arnold started the proceedings by having cruditie Louis B. Hobson present Atty. Ben Jones, who formally installed officers in the manner grand... bringing in play legal quips and challenging prognostications in humorous, yet serious charging of respective responsibilities. Dr. E. F. White, long the chairman of the social committee, is the new president... I. A. Badden, the vice president, H. H. Sims, corresponding secretary, E. L. Hawkins, treasurer, Claiborne Davis, chaplain, Charles Fletcher, parliamentarian, W. C. (Bill) Weathers, club manager, and Taylor Ward, sergeant-at-arms.

Following a rousing ovation, Dr. White presented the new members of the club and their wives... Onzie Horne, Hannibal Parks and Mrs. Parks, John Outlaw and Mrs. Outlaw, Clarence Pope and Mrs. Pope, Floyd Newman and Mrs. Newman, Atty. Ben Jones, Sam Helm and Mrs. Helm.

Other Memphisians present and wives were U. S. Bonds, Walter Culpepper, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Jackson, Dr. A. T. Martin, Mrs. E. L. Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McGraw, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Oates, Mrs. E. Frank White, Mrs. Louis Hobson, LeFevre Harris, Robert Wynn, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Willis, George Stevens, Mrs. Claiborne Davis, Mrs. Charles Fletcher, Mrs. Taylor Ward, Mrs. Ann Lawrence Hall, escort of Bill Weathers, Mrs. Howard Sims.

Guests include Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Sawyer, Miss Jewel Gentry, Mr. and Mrs. William Hampton, Mrs. Charlesteen Miles, Thaddeus Stokes, Atty. and Mrs. W. W. Willis, Miss Cecelia Willis and Lawrence Westley, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Stockton, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Brandon, Miss Gerri Pope and Walker and Charles Tarpley, Miss Mavis McGhee, Mrs. Ruby Gaden, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allen, James Austin, William Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Brown, Mrs. Margaret Bolton and others.

Prof. Hunt made a brilliant response... and never was his renowned oratory more beautiful and effective... paying tribute also to the late Mr. Lawrence, Abe Scharff Branch YMCA Board of Management Monday night, Feb. 9, honoring his elevation to chairman emeritus of the Committee of Management, on which he has served as chairman for 20 years.

Glowing tribute was paid to him as a friend, a principal, a pastor and as a civic leader, who for the past quarter of a century has been associated with every worthwhile project in the city, including his signal contribution in labor for a branch YMCA, begun more than 25 years ago.

The gymnasium of the branch Y was a scene of beauty, with every table filled with guests who represented a cross-section of our far-flung community. At the speakers table were Miss E. F. Mae Simons, Dr. and Mrs. E. F. White, Rev. B. F. Hooks, Mrs. Melvin Robinson — chairman of the Ladies Auxiliary, Mrs. Addie Owens, executive secretary of Vance Avenue Branch YMCA, Fred Joseph, executive secretary of Abe Scharff Y, Mr. J. T. Chandler, who succeeds Prof. Hunt as chairman of the board of management, who served as master of ceremonies, Mr. E. L. Whittington, general secretary of YMCA, Ed Dahlstrom and Dr. Hollis F. Price, president of LeMoynce college.

Music was a delight, with a vocal solo by Garner Currie and instrumental music played by Mr. E. L. Pender.

A delicious turkey dinner was served under the supervision of Mrs. Eudilla Holmes... thereby resulting in banquet food which was a far departure from the sometimes cold and tasteless fare which many times marks such occasion. A brilliant speech was delivered by Dr. John B. Eubanks, head of the department of social science at Jackson college, a dear friend and church associate of Prof. Hunt, whose appearance was a surprise to the honoree. Among the many beautiful telegraphic messages which were read was that of Christopher M. Roulhac, former and first executive secretary of the Abe Scharff Branch Y, now engaged in Y work as the director of a Germantown, Philadelphia, Pa. branch.

Prof. Hunt made a brilliant response... and never was his renowned oratory more beautiful and effective... paying tribute also to the late Mr. Lawrence, who pioneered in Memphis for the establishment of the branch which has become a vital community force. He was presented with a handsome vibrator lounge chair as a gift from the board of management.

LA VOGUE CLUB

Mrs. Warren Hawkins, long noted for her beautiful parties, was hostess at a truly sumptuous and swank party last week when he entertained the LaVogue club and guests at her lovely Cannon Street home. Acting as co-hostess was Mrs. Thelma Brown... and about the house were myriads of beautiful flowers, the gift of Mrs. Eddie Rodgers.

A plentiful bar was tended by William Weathers, while Dr. E. Frank White and Mr. Hawkins assisted with arrangements and caring for any wants of the scores of fashionably dressed guests present. Cocktails, hors d'oeuvres were served at the bar... and delicious turkey, ham, salad, and interesting and colorful side dishes spelled divine eating. The Valentine celebration was duly marked with lovely valentines decorating the walls of the rooms.

Warren's party was quite unique in another respect... with many guests invited to play bridge... while others were on hand to the cocktail party. However the grand hospitality of the party was marked with the conversational-piece prizes that went to lucky bridge players. First and second club and guest prizes were gorgeous nylon sheets — won by the members Mrs. Sadie McCoy and Mrs. Maggie Jordan, and guests Mrs. Aretta Polk and Mrs. Wills Dean Jackson. Nylon pillow cases were won by third and fourth place winners, Mrs. Arden Herndon and Mrs. Larsenia Cain of the club and Mrs. Charlesteen Miles and Miss Jim Ella Cotton from the guest group... and fifth place prizes of lovely tea towels going to Mrs. Bernadine Holmes and Mrs. Bertha Ray.

Other members of La Vogue present were Miss Bell McLean, Mrs. Cleora Neale and Mrs. Othella Shannon. Cocktail guests were Mesdames Thelma Brown, A. Fowler, Clara Hobson, Mattie Johnson, Hazel Lewis, Ruth Parker, Hazel Pyles, Eddie Rodgers, Aubrey Turner and Jeanette White.

Bridge guests also included Mesdames Lydia McKinney, Grace Parker, Delores Scott, Matilda Ward, Alma Booth, Sallie Bartholomew, Ann Hall, St. Elmo Hampson and Mrs. Samuel Helm... who each received a finger-

Civil Rights Hearings To Be March 18

Approve Funds For Senate Body

WASHINGTON — U. S. Senator Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., (D-Mo.) chairman of the Senate Constitutional Rights Subcommittee, announced that the subcommittee had set Wednesday, March 18, as the date on which it intends to begin public hearings on the civil rights bills pending before it. Senator Hennings stated:

"Yesterday afternoon the Senate approved the resolution providing funds for the operation of the Constitutional Rights Subcommittee during the coming year. This morning, at my request, the subcommittee held an organizational meeting to discuss proposed activities and future plans. It was agreed that public hearings should be scheduled to begin Wednesday, March 18, 1959, on the various civil rights proposals assigned to the subcommittee."

Senator Hennings said that he had hoped that public hearings on all pending civil rights legislation could be commenced and completed at an early date.

"In view of the seemingly authoritative press reports in recent weeks that the Administration has been working on some sort of a civil rights bill, the subcommittee approved the March 18 date in order to have sufficient time to circulate and consider not only the civil rights bills which already have been introduced in the Senate, but any proposal the Administration cares to make.

Senator Hennings indicated that the Constitutional Rights Subcommittee also plans to proceed with the various studies and investigations he announced as part of the subcommittee's program for the coming year. These include:

- (1) freedom of information in Government and the alleged "Executive privilege";
- (2) wiretapping, eavesdropping, and the Bill of Rights;
- (3) the rights of persons, particularly civilians, subject to American military jurisdiction;
- (4) adequate provisions for protecting the constitutional right to legal counsel in federal courts;
- (5) a national survey of the current status of constitutional rights;
- (6) fair hearing procedures for federal job applicants.

Alberta Adams Takes Over As 'Replacement'

ATLANTA, Ga. — Who ever said "there's no business like show business" certainly knew what he was talking about. There is no business quite like it.

Alberta Adams, the girl who walks, talks and swings the blues, took a booking here at the Royal Peacock to fill in for youthful Tony Spade when the Downbeat Record artist couldn't fulfill his contract. Now that in itself may not seem like much until you understand she accepted a salary smaller than her usual fee.

Lockard. . . all who declared there "should be more parties like this one!"

JACK AND JILL CELEBRATE
 Last Saturday Vance Avenue YWCA was the scene of three lovely Jack and Jill parties . . . beginning with the one for the small fry early in the afternoon, followed by the Dancing party given by the Twixteens. Since my own 'pride and joy' is a member of the latter group, 'twas there that I, along with J&J mothers Mrs. Emma T. Johnson, Mrs. Louise Davis, Mrs. Ophelia Byas, Mrs. Dorothy Westbrooks and other doting mothers enjoyed the antics of their progeny, scrubbed, curled, and polished to perfection. The Twixteens invited two friends each to enjoy their party, and still chattering about the good time they had were members Diana Briscoe, Brenda Sawyer, Lynne Ulen, Billy Speight, Kathy Graham, Edgar Davis, III, Terry Harris, Linda Hargraves, Dalton Hooks, Anthony Johnson, George Lowe, Bertha Puryear, Dianne and Joseph Westbrooks, Myrna Williams, Emmitt Woods, Norris Walters, Mae Byas, Donnie Davis, and Maudette Brownlee.

Following the Twixteens, The Guys and Dolls, the teen-age set, held forth at nine o'clock for an evening of dancing, games and fun.

File Tax Returns Now On Household Workers

Employers of household workers who have not already filed a return for the October through December 1958 quarter should do so at once. James M. Rountree, district director of Internal Revenue for the Nashville district reminded them recently.

At the same time, Joe W. Eanes, district manager of the Memphis social security office, pointed out that the obligation to file a return applies to every household employer who paid $50 or more in cash wages to a cook, maid, laundress, or any other household employee during the calendar quarter and are due to be filed after the close of each calendar quarter and are due April 30, July 31, Oct. 31, and Jan. 31 every year.

Most household employers will make their reports on Form 942. This is a special simplified form printed on the back of a return envelope. If you are a household employer who is already on the mailing list of the District Director of Internal Revenue, one of

Taught Daughter, 3 To Snatch Purses, Draws Jail Term

RICHMOND, England—(UPI)—A 21-year-old mother said Monday that she made her three-year-old daughter a purse snatcher.

The mother, Mrs. Maureen Yaxley, was sentenced to six months in prison for stealing purses.

Mrs. Yaxley told the court here it all began when her daughter, Sue, lifted a purse from a shopping bag on a counter and gave it to her mother.

From then on she would hold the child near somebody's shopping cart. If the baby was caught taking the bag Mrs. Yaxley would apologize for the child's "mischievousness."

She said the child thought it was "just a game."

Mrs. Yaxley was caught by a woman detective.

MUSING: Don't face each day with a sense of inability and weakness. With such an attitude life will seem too much, and discouragement is bound to set in. Create within you the realization that you have what it takes to meet your responsibility.

Dear Carlotta: Everyone is talking because I am interested in a boy who has a reputation for being wild. My parents won't let him come to see me. He really has wonderful qualities. All he needs is someone who believes in him.

If we were married or engaged, he would give up his wild ways. Don't you think that faith and love will help him to become the kind of person that everyone admires and respects? Ann.

Dear Ann: Just let us suppose that your parents would allow this "wild" young man to come to your house, and suppose that you do become engaged and eventually marry. At what point will he discover that you have planned on changing him?

He was a wild young man when you became interested in him. It is just possible that he considers that his greatest charm, and will not approve of your attempts to mold him into what you think a man should be.

How would you feel if you discovered that he had plans on changing your character to match his? And, too, would you be satisfied with simply understanding him? It is so easy to turn into a nag without even noticing it. But you may be sure that he will notice it. First you should decide if you are interested in him or making him over.

This is not the kind of love that makes a marriage succeed. Marrying a man for his sins is like marrying a man for his money except one difference: sins last longer.

Young Car Thief
MEXICO CITY — (UPI) — Federal police said today they had nabbed the youngest professional car thief in Mexican history, 10-year-old Maximiliano Reyes Aguilar.

He was captured Friday after wrecking a stolen convertible in a 40-block police chase. Maximiliano said "two older fellows" had taught him the trade, and he had stolen 10 or 12 cars.

Director for the form and give him her name and address to be added to the mailing list before the next quarterly return is due. The amount of the social security tax for the last calendar quarter of 1958 is 4 1/2 per cent of the total cash wages paid to a household worker in a calendar quarter. The employee is expected to share this tax with the employer, however, it is the obligation of the employer to report and remit the total tax or 4 1/2 per cent to the District Director of Internal Revenue.

Beginning with Jan. 1959, the social security tax will be 2 1/2 per cent each for employer and employee. While the $50 cash wage test applies separately to each household worker in your employ, no report or social security tax is due on any household worker to whom you pay less than $50 in cash during the calendar quarter, Mr. Eanes pointed out.

MAGNOLIA MISS

It isn't often that a coed from Mississippi can come to a Memphis high school and make the academic and social hit scored by a certain Booker T. Washington senior, and for one, think this needs mentioning.

The Magnolia Miss is 18-year-old Ethel Davis of 289 Conlee, who proved that she had the ability to close the city-county gap. Miss Davis came to BTW in 1955.

An "all-A" student at the Mississippi school she attended, she is an "A-B" student at Washington.

The "Delta doll" is doing great in extra-curricular activities, too. She is a member of the Student Council, the Motor club and the Future Home Nurses group. She works part-time for a family as a baby-sitter.

Miss Davis wants to become a lab technician. She plans to attend Fisk university at Nashville or LeMoyne college after she graduates. A shapely lass, she seemingly shouldn't have too much trouble making her mark on the world.

HOODS INVADING SCHOOL. Manassas high, second largest school in Memphis, is getting its share of unwelcome visitors. For the last two weeks teachers have complained about thugs coming in making a racket in the halls, molesting little boys by taking their money, buying liquor and beating up helpless instructors. Things are better now since some of the thugs have been warned that to continue such disturbances could mean imprisonment.

BIG LET-DOWN. Melrose Head Coach Frank Lewis' Golden Wildcats lost their chances of figuring in the championship last week when they upset by Lester 63-60 in their own back yard. The Wildcats, one of the most publicized teams in the league, also were dropped by the Washington Warriors who scalped them to the tune of 55-52. Looks like Washington is just too tough for Melrose.

MOVING COURTS OUT? The Barons Social club seems to be trying to run the reputable Courts out of business. Baron boss Paul "Big Words" Robinson is intercepting former Court members and asking them to join his organization for a smaller price...

which can be called an attempt on the part of Robinson to make his group No. 1.

NEW TWIST. A new twist has taken place on the basketball court of the Prep league. Concerning officiating at the games. Students have long complained about the said to be unfair penalties called by the men in Zebra suits. It has been said that the officials study the rules of basketball only to pass the test, and then throw he books away.

However, a few of the older people think that the referees call the games to the best of their ability.

Tri-City News

Dyer, Rutherford, Trenton

Rain, rain, Go away. We three children want to play.

Come again another day When we three have had our play.

Remember that from your childhood days? With all the current rain, any poem or song pertaining to rain comes to mind. The Brownsville District Winter Council is to meet at the CME church here Saturday, but we are sure all those determined workers for Christ will be present, regardless to the weather. Braving the rain Thursday night was the Missionary society of the CME church along with representatives from all other city churches of Dyer in a beautiful and impressive Race Relations program. The attire of the ladies as they represented various countries was one that could not but help arrest the eyes of the few that were present to witness the occasion.

Those persons and the country they represented follow: Mrs. Beatrice Ivie, Japan; Mrs. Virginia O'Daniel, China; Mrs. Mattie Wicks, Netherlands; Mrs. La Pearl Burns, Mexico; Mrs. Gertrude West, Germany; Mrs. Everenia Johnson, Hawaii; Mrs. Ruby Harris, Korea; Mrs. Mary Harris, Spain; Mrs. Alberta Nolan, Ireland; Mrs. Ida Mae McGee, Cuba; Mrs. Addie Gentry, India; Mrs. Wallace McClain, American Indian; Mrs. Mildred McDaniel, Argentina; and Mrs. Hollis Jordan, America.

Other "countries" failed to make this session but sent their regrets with promises to attend the next one. A nice offering was taken in the form of registration and tea was served at the close of the sessions. Mrs. Imogene Burnett was at the piano, Rev. Rogers conducted the worship and Mrs. Lucy Overall was the sponsor.

Science Winning Fight Against Tooth Decay

One of the most widespread diseases in this country is tooth decay, according to the Shelby County Dental Society, which is sponsoring National Children's Dental Health week here from Feb. 8 through Feb. 14.

Only three per cent of Americans go through life without being affected by the disease, according to information released by the society, of which Dr. I. A. Watson, Jr., is president.

Modern scientific research is changing the picture. Research is being done on the subject of tooth disorder in practically every dental school in the country as well as in other institutions.

TOOTH SAVERS
As a result of research, water fluoridation is helping to prevent decay in the teeth of thousands of American children, various types of high-speed cutting instruments have been developed, and new methods of treating injured teeth devised.

A child born this year may eventually have a life expectancy of 100 years, and with the proper care he can get his teeth to serve him for the same period — if they and their parents want them to.

One way to prevent tooth loss is to watch the diet, and eliminate the foods which spell danger for the teeth.

AVOID SUGAR
For the sake of the teeth one should avoid those which contain sugar, which is used as a food for acid-reducing bacteria in the mouth. The acid attacks the enamel of the teeth by making a small hole in the enamel, the beginning of decay.

Fresh fruits and vegetables should be substituted for pies and candies and between-meal snacks. Many fruits and vegetables act as natural toothbrushes.

Parents Vote To Boycott Va. School

By H. L. STEVENSON

FRONT ROYAL, Va. — (UPI) — A silent schoolhouse standing on a hilltop may become a new symbol for Virginia and the South-land in the battle to maintain segregation.

The building is here, overlooking an once serene town of 9,000. Its doors have been closed and signs warning against trespassing have been out front since Sept. 12, 1958. The signs will come down, the doors will reopen Wednesday, Feb. 18.

Barring a last-minute stay by a federal appeals judge today, Warren County, Va., will comply with federal court orders to admit 22 Negroes to the high school in Front Royal, once called "Hell Town" by frontier travelers in the 18th century.

Today, the people of Front Royal are frustrated. They are bitter. The spectre of integration has left a scar across the face of the town that traces its history beyond the Revolutionary War.

White parents in Front Royal and Warren County made an agonizing decision last week. Without debate, they voted to keep their children in a makeshift system of private classes rather than send them up the hill to the high school with Negroes.

Three other Virginia localities have admitted 30 Negroes to 10 previously white schools during the past two weeks. Arlington, Norfolk and Alexandria quietly lowered the color bar without incident after their legal battles were lost.

All three cities are metropolitan melting pots for government workers, transients and people from dozens of states. Norfolk is "home" to thousands of sailors and their families.

Front Royal is the opposite. It is a small town, much like the hundreds that dot other Deep South states. A sharp young business executive summed it up.

"You hardly know your neighbor in those big cities. Here you know everybody and everybody knows about it," he said.

Most of Front Royal's people, some 3,000 of them, depend on the big American Viscose Rayon manufacturing plant for a living. Agriculture still plays an important part in the economy.

The things you hear discussed in other small towns exist here. Things like the outbreak of dog poisonings and the pollution of a nearby river that has killed thousands of fish. But nobody mentions them much anymore.

Social Security For Low Income Farmers

Self-employed farmers may use an alternate method of figuring their earnings from their farms. Joe W. Eanes, district manager of the Memphis Social Security Administration office, and James M. Rountree, district director of Internal Revenue reminded farm operators last week.

Mr. Rountree pointed out that self-employed farmers may figure their earnings for social security in several ways.

1. If gross income from agricultural self-employment is not more than $1,800, count as net farm earnings actual net or two-thirds of gross farm income.

2. If gross farm income is more than $1,800 and net farm earnings less than $1,200, use either actual net or $1,200.

3. If gross farm income is more than $1,800 and net farm earnings $1,200 or more, the actual amount of net earnings must be used.

LOW INCOME
Mr. Rountree added that use of the option enables farmers with gross income as low as $600 to obtain social security protection for themselves in their old age and for survivors in case of death.

He emphasized that regardless of the way that net earnings are figured, at least $400, from farming alone, or in combination with other earnings, must be reported in order to get social security for the year.

In addition to the revised optional method, the law provides social security coverage to some farm owners who receive cash or crop shares from tenant farmers. If the farm-landlord under his agreement with his tenant, materially participates in the production of the farm crops raised on his land, this income may be reported for social security purposes.

TAX FORMS
Requests for information regarding taxes due and tax return forms should be directed to the Internal Revenue office at Nashville.

Questions concerning the old age, survivors and disability insurance program will be answered by the social security office in Memphis.

Defender Publications In Phase of Expansion

CHICAGO — On the third anniversary of the CHICAGO DAILY DEFENDER, the newspaper is in another phase of its million-dollar expansion program, according to John H. Sengstacke, editor, and publisher.

In discussing the continuation of the newspaper's expansion program (announced three years ago at 50th anniversary celebration of the week end publication) Sengstacke also told of new appointments to his executive staff.

The DEFENDER, published by the Robert S. Abbott Publishing Co. now owns a 63,000 square foot building on Chicago's Michigan ave. The building is undergoing extensive remodeling for a move of personnel. A grand opening is scheduled for the fall.

To strengthen his executive team Sengstacke announced the appointment of Kenneth O. Wilson as advertising director, and D. Parke Gibson as promotion director.

Wilson, who founded Kenneth O. Wilson Associates, sales and merchandising consultants, will direct all the DEFENDER's advertising and merchandising activities. He is a former assistant advertising manager for EBONY and JET magazines.

Gibson, who recently resigned as promotion manager for EBONY and JET to accept the DEFENDER post, will direct circulation and advertising promotion.

The DAILY DEFENDER, celebrating these years of publication this month, is the only two-edition daily newspaper published by Negroes. The only other Negro daily in the U. S. is published in Atlanta.

DAILY DEFENDER circulation figures ending September 30th, for successive years were: 1956, 16,997; 1957, 21,381; 1958, a n d 26,241.

Increased services to advertisers are included in the paper's expansion.

A new merchandising service includes retail calls by representatives, mass mailings to dealers in Negro areas, talks to salesmen and group demonstrations to housewives.

Advertisers may also make use of the newspaper's test kitchen, and determine consumer reaction through surveys and through the consumer panel, to be composed of members of the 2500-member Chicago Housewives Association, Inc.

Rev. Netters has the distinction of being one of the two men who are presidents of a Memphis Parent-Teacher Association.

Other program participants will be Mrs. Armada Washington, L. V. Johnson, and a room mothers representative. Music will be furnished by the Glee club and a band of the school. Mrs. M. S. Draper and Mrs. M. L. Cox are program chairmen.

Final plans for the annual PTA tea, to be held Sunday, April 12, will be given by the General Chairman, Mrs. M. H. Porter. Previously this financial effort has met with tremendous success through the cooperation of the patrons and general public. Support is again solicited for this effort to benefit the education program of the school.

The principals, Mrs. O. S. Shannon and M. N. Conley, and the PTA Executive Committee urge the presence of all parents and teachers at this important meeting. It is very timely to pause and pay tribute to the fine women who pioneered in concern for the welfare of children and youth by founding the Parent-Teacher organization.

Seated with Mrs. Johnson are her son Lawrence, a senior at Virginia State College, and Lawrence, Jr.

ZENOBIA JOHNSON, College Dietitian for 32 years says:

"WE ARE STRICTLY A CARNATION MILK FAMILY"

Mrs. Johnson is known all over the country for her distinguished work as Dietitian at a leading Alabama college. After her busy day at school she is active in charity, civic and club work in Montgomery, Alabama.

"What do I do in my spare time? I cook," Mrs. Johnson admits. "One of my favorite dishes is macaroni and cheese, and I make it the easiest way in the world—with Carnation Evaporated Milk. You see, Carnation is so rich I need no shortening or flour for the cheese sauce!"

"The fact is, I wouldn't dream of using any other milk for 'creamy' recipes," Mrs. Johnson adds. "Carnation makes superb cream sauce, cream gravy, cream pies and casseroles—and there's a very good reason. Carnation is twice as rich as ordinary milk."

"FOR COFFEE we like Carnation better than cream," Mrs. Johnson says. Millions prefer this double-rich milk because it makes coffee taste so much richer. Carnation in the red and white can is the world's leading brand of evaporated milk.

"CARNATION has always been the baby milk in our family," Mrs. Johnson says. "We've used this milk and this milk alone in the rearing of our two sons and our three grandchildren." Carnation is the safest, most nourishing and digestible form of milk for baby's formula.

RECIPE:

CARNATION 3-MINUTE CHEESE SAUCE IN MACARONI AND CHEESE

(Makes 4 to 6 servings)
